Website ETPRS18 - Homepage

ETPRS18 is a special, two-day conference about TPRS and other Comprehensible Input approaches. This conference is meant for all world language teachers and teachers of a second language who wish to make their classes more dynamic and interactive, and to give their students the gift of real proficiency in their new language.

Program for beginners

ETPRS18 offers a special program for those who do not have experience in TPRS and who wish to know more about it. You will learn an exotic language, taught by an experienced TPRS teacher, and you will receive instruction and coaching on the techniques and skills.

Program for teachers with experience in TPRS

Are you already teaching with TPRS? Then you are invited to observe demo classes in various languages, and to participate in a series of interesting workshops about CI strategies, like Storylistening, TPRS Movie Talk, Total Physical Response and Teaching with novels. Or learn how to write your own TPRS-novel or do research on TPRS!

Keynote speech

We are proud and happy that Karen Lichtman, assistant-professor and researcher at the Northern Illinois University, is willing to give the key note speech. She will talk about the interesting research she does on the influence of age on the language acquisition process, and will give us insight in the results of the research that has been done on TPRS.

Try-out Labs

We all know that doing something yourself is the best way to make newly learned skills stick. That is why we invite all participants to come to the Try-out Labs on Friday evening after dinner. Come to learn by watching and doing, try out something new or show everyone what you're good at. The session will be hosted by experienced coaches, who will make sure this evening is a great experience for everyone.

Book presentations

Various authors of TPRS novels and curricula will present their books and materials to us.

Language

ETPRS18 is an international conference. Therefore all workshops and presentations will be in English.

Lunch and dinner

On Friday and Saturday, we will have lunch together on the premises, and on Friday evening you are invited to have dinner with us during the key note speech. Both lunches and dinner are included in the registration fee.
